Information We Collect

Definition of Personal Information

“Personal Information” is information that, either alone or in combination with other information, identifies you. Examples of Personal Information include, among others, name, email address, phone number, and mailing address. Personal Information includes certain information we collect when you apply for, or obtain, a financial product or service from us, which can include your Social Security number, account number, income, account balances, payment history, credit history, and credit scores. When we combine Personal Information with other information, we treat the combined information as Personal Information.

Information You Provide

We collect Personal Information you provide via forms, surveys, applications or other online fields including your name, postal or email addresses, telephone, mobile numbers, or account numbers. The exact information we need to collect will depend on the purpose of the form. We will indicate on the form whether a particular field of information is mandatory or optional. If you choose not to provide certain information, we may not be able to provide requested services.

Information We Automatically Collect from You

We use technologies that automatically collect information (including Personal Information) about visitors or users of our Sites. For example, the following information is collected:

- Cookies. Cookies are small text files sent by a website server to your device or computer that helps us collect information on how you use the Sites.
- Device Identifies. An ID number transmitted by your mobile device that helps us track unique visitors of our Sites. You may adjust the settings of your mobile device to stop transmitting device identifiers.
- Web Beacons. Web beacons (also known as clear gifs, pixel tags, and single-pixel gifs) are small images on a website or email that may be used to measure the effectiveness of our communication with you and tracking the success of our marketing campaigns.
- Web Server Logs. Web server logs are records of activity created by the device that delivers the web pages you request to your internet browser. For example, a web server log may record the search term you entered or the link you clicked on to bring you to the web page. The web server log also may record information about your device, such as your IP address, operating system, and internet browser.
- Relationship-Based Advertising. We may use information about your relationship with us (such as types of accounts) to help determine which advertisements or offers to present to you.

- Analytics. We use Google Analytics and other analytics services to collect information about use of our Sites. Through analytics services, we collect information such as how often users visit this Site, what pages they visit when they do so, and what other sites they used prior to coming to this Site. We use this information only to make improvements to the Sites. We do not combine the information collected using Google Analytics with other Personal Information. Google's ability to use and share information collected by Google Analytics about your visits to this Site is restricted by the Google Analytics Terms of Use and Google Privacy Policy. Please refer to those policies for more information.
- Geolocation Data. We do not track your location unless you specifically initiate this request by using our tools to find the nearest branch of ATM location. You may also limit and customize your location tracking settings for each mobile application on your smartphone.
- Do Not Track. We do not track our members over time and across third party websites or online services to provide advertising and therefore do not respond to Do Not Track (DNT) signals. However, some third-party websites and mobile applications do keep track of your browsing activities. If you are visiting such sites, you may wish to set a DNT signal on your browser so that third parties know you do not want to be tracked.
